

NORTHMINSTER PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

THE NORTHERN LIGHT

SUMMER 2010

ISSUE 6

A Word from the Pastor . . .

You've been asked to be reading Scripture in anticipation of our Meal with a Mission on Sunday June 6th following worship. It's a catered meal. The nourishment we hope to find though is more than physical. You see, we're called to serve Jesus Christ alongside one another. It isn't an option. It's our faithful response to the Grace that we've been given. So please take seriously the invitation to share what we can as part of our thankful spirits.

As part of attending the meal, you've been given a list of Bible stories to consider. Please know you are not limited to the list of texts on the handouts. There was a copy in the newsletter last month and there are copies in the Family Room on the table just outside the sanctuary. You've been asked to choose a story that reflects your own spiritual walk with God as well as a story that reflects where you see Northminster Presbyterian Church now. If you're so inclined, choose also where you think Northminster has been historically and relate it to a biblical story reflective of that history. In addition, you may choose the biblical story you believe defines the call to Northminster Presbyterian for its future. Choose the stories and come together with the Planning Team to have some Holy Conversation about how the Holy Spirit is moving in our hearts and minds. Attend the meal even if you haven't done the "homework."

On May 23rd we celebrated Pentecost. It is when we celebrate the day the Holy Spirit burst into the midst of the disciples in the Acts version of the story. It is on this day we say that the Church was born. It wasn't neat, decent, or in order. It was a mighty rushing wind. The Spirit was, and can still be, disruptive and shocking. I expect that is a part of what keeps us from following the Holy Spirit. It can be scary. It is time now, though, for the ministry we have here together to be defined not by fear of what God might be calling us to do or be, or fear of what might upset others, and instead define our ministry by the love of and call from Jesus Christ. (continued on next page)

Here's a story of someone who was called and afraid and who ended up doing pretty well. It comes from Exodus, Chapter 3. It is the call story of Moses. He was minding his own business, doing what was comfortable and familiar (that's where we are in my opinion). Having fled Egypt as a wanted man, Moses had now taken on the role of shepherd and decided to join up with the House of Jesse. He had settled into a routine. It was then that he saw a burning bush and out of it God spoke. God spoke to him and called him to go and preach a message of liberation to the power of Egypt. Paraphrasing the text God said, "Go tell the most powerful person in the land that he is to let Israel free from their slave labor." Moses was not eager to respond as is the case with call stories. He tried making excuses. "God I can't speak well. How am I supposed to go and deliver this message?" God assured him that he would help him speak. "What if the Pharaoh doesn't recognize my authority? Who shall I say sent me?" Tell him I AM sent you. "What tools will you give me?" Use the staff in your hand and go with your brother Aaron. We can't complain about not having enough to follow God's call—all Moses got was Aaron and a stick (a joke from one of the preachers at the conference I'm currently attending in Nashville).

God calls EVERYONE to serve in some capacity. Are we serving now? If not, can we ask and try to tune in to the call? Let's talk about how we're answering our call or starting to listen to it. I look forward to seeing you in church and at Food for Thought: A Meal with a Mission so we can enjoy some food and conversation.

Dwight

Lynette Sparks, daughter-in-law of Frank and Carol Sparks and spouse of Brad Sparks, was ordained into the Presbyterian Ministry on Pentecost Sunday. Lynette graduated with honors from Colgate Rochester Crozer Divinity School in Rochester N.Y. with a Masters of Divinity Degree. The ordination was administered by a commission of the Presbytery of Western New York and took place in their home congregation of North Presbyterian Church. The family resides in East Amherst, N.Y., a suburb of Buffalo. Lynette will serve a Presbyterian Congregation in Lockport N.Y.

A Special Note of Thanks

A BIG thank you to the volunteers that help fold, sort, seal and transport the monthly newsletter for mailing. Thank you for your faithful service.

This job would be much too large for one person!

Enjoy your summer off!

HEALTH NEWS from the Parish Nurse Nancy Jean Graves
June 2010—IT'S VACATION TIME

Are you taking a vacation this year? Here are some tips to managing medications while you travel. Before you fly, avert problems related to your medications and health by:

1. Filling prescriptions—keep prescription drugs in original labeled containers. Don't combine drugs in one bottle.
2. Pack your drugs in your carry-on bag. The name on your prescription containers must match the name on your ticket. Bring more than you think you will need in case of delays.
Liquids, gels or aerosol prescriptions and non-prescription medications are allowed in a carry-on if in a one quart zip lock, clear, plastic bag. Carry a supply of medication in your checked baggage as well, in case of loss or theft of your carry-on bag. If you fly internationally, check with your air carrier for international regulations in medicines.
3. Obtaining authorization letters if needed—if you take a controlled substance such as a prescription narcotic or a syringe for insulin, carry a letter of authorization from your doctor. Once at the airport, notify the screener of your condition and that you are carrying supplies.
4. Making lists—prepare a list of all of your prescription and non-prescription drugs as well as the amount you take and how often, in case you need medical care while away from home.

Have a safe trip and enjoy your vacation.

July 2010—DISTRACTED DRIVING

“Distraction” is anything that causes you to glance away from the road ahead of you for more than two seconds. This causes a risk of an accident or near accident. The number of possible distractions or inattentions while driving are limitless. Cell phones seem to get all of the bad press. However, there are many other things that cause a distraction, such as eating, smoking, looking at a map, reading, looking for something in your car, or putting on makeup, to name a few.

Things that you can do to minimize distractions include:

1. Caging or harnessing your pet before you travel.
2. If you must eat or drink, have a passenger hand you items or arrange the items within easy reach while you are stopped.
3. Taking a few moments before you begin your trip to make car adjustments such as adjusting seats, mirrors, seat belts, and the radio.
4. It is best to pull over to use your cell phone. If you insist on driving while using your cell phone, keep the conversation brief and have a passenger dial for you.

These concentration tips can help you reduce your level of distraction. Some glancing away from the road is good. The most attentive form is when you engage in frequent, brief glances away to do such things as check your speed, look in the mirrors or otherwise assess your driving environment.

Traffic accidents are the leading cause of death among younger age groups. They need to focus on their driving and keep their eyes on the road.

As you age, a number of factors may impact your driving ability. You may be less flexible, your reflexes may slow, and your hearing and vision, especially night vision, tend to decline. These changes are all the more reason to minimize distraction while you drive and stay as focused as possible. Learning how to concentrate and focus while driving may keep you and your vehicle out of harm's way.

CONCENTRATE - FOCUS. Be a good driver.

August 2010—PERIPHERAL ARTERY DISEASE

Also known as PAD, is a common circulatory problem of narrowing of the arteries by plaque causing reduced circulation to the limbs. PAD is more common in the legs. The reduced flow of blood causes cramp-like pain when walking called intermittent claudication. Usually symptoms are mild and are relieved by a few minutes of rest. Other symptoms include: numbness, weakness, coldness, hair loss, color change or change in the appearance of the nails. In severe cases: ulcers, injury, infection and gangrene are seen. Additional causes of PAD—blood clot in the artery, injury, unusual anatomy and infection.

PAD is also associated with widespread accumulation of fatty deposits that diminish blood flow to the heart and brain, leading to heart attack or stroke. Early diagnosis and treatment can lessen the chances of these events.

Risk factors for PAD include: smoking, diabetes, obesity, hypertension, elevated cholesterol, age and family history. Initial diagnosis is by exam, blood flow studies and ultrasound, which can be done in a physician's office. Treatment focuses on managing symptoms, stopping the progression, life-style changes, medication, angioplasty or artery bypass surgery.

Love is in the air; keep it fresh and unpolluted

It's June. . . Love is in the air. Love makes the world go round. For folks truly in love, it is a daily affirmation, renewable 24/7.

Everyone knows what love is, from the memory of our first, forever, crush. . . through "til death do we part" commitment. Real love makes the mundane seem miraculous.

Love makes life fun, livable, and ultimately our greatest treasure and pleasure. Love is the feeling that brings us together when we are young, naïve, inexperienced and clueless

Love ages as life's pages turn and our story reaches conclusion. Love's patina deepens as it survives the storms. Love re-chooses the chosen, again and again.

Love is the binder when life comes unglued.

Love is the reason we save mushy cards, pressed flowers and candy wrappers.

Love is nesting without taking flight.

Love is biting our tongue, eating our words, and swallowing our pride.

Love is trimming our toenails so we won't snag the sheets.

Love is waiting without tapping our watch.

Love is for better or worse even when worse doesn't get better.

Love is eating something we don't like. . . Just because "she" cooked it.

Love is loving our mother-in-law.

Love is camping on the couch when the kids want to sleep with mommy.

Love is tolerating times when our object of love objects to love.

Love is counting pills—not being a pill.

Love is not laughing when we see each other naked.

Love is celebrating every wrinkle we've earned.

Love is forgetting who started the argument.

Love is cooking dinner when we want to eat out, and eating out when we want to stay home.

Love is picking up our underwear.

Love is walking the dog when it's not our turn.

Love is clicking "Mute" when she wants to talk.

Love is an investment that pays highest dividends.

Love is wallpapering together. . . without an attorney present.

Love is holding that thought and holding our tongue.

Love is waving: "Enjoy yourself," and meaning it.

Love is acknowledging that age affects everything, especially the ego.

Love is listening when we're totally bored.

Love is maintaining independence while nurturing interdependence.

Love is letting the cat sleep next to the wife.

Love is when nearsighted becomes dear-sighted.

Love is forgetting how your mom made biscuits.

Love is wedded bliss or blisters.

Love is being the oldest couple at the family reunion.

Love is "seeing" beauty when she first wakes up.

Love is remembering what attracted us in the first place.

Love is a change of direction, and a direction to change.

Love is putting "nice" packs on bruised feelings.

Love is loving the other more. . . most of the time.

Love is not for sale, but it deserves credit.

Love is eating the end piece of bread.

Love is going back to the store after we just came home from the store.

Love is remaining calm when we hear, "Whoops, I forgot."

Love is a foot rub, fetching a towel, or going back for the keys.

Love is silent when queried: "Does this make me look fat?"

Love is declaring a truce despite ammunition to win the war.

Love is laying down our arms and falling into each other's.

Love is recognizing the difference between a wedding ring and a nose ring.

Love is being there, not being away.

Love is wrestling with grandchildren on the floor, then, asking them to help us up.

Love is canceling our "date" in Divorce Court.

Love is always a Work in Progress, Under Construction for a lifetime.

Love is in the Air; keep it fresh and unpolluted.
